

ENTHUSIASM MARKS
STALWART MEETING
AT MADISON TODAY

JAMES G. MONAHAN SOUNDS KEY-NOTE OF CONVENTION IN A STIRRING ADDRESS.

PHILIPP IS MENTIONED

Milwaukee Man's Name Suggested As Choice of Gathering for Government—Other Candidates.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Madison, June 23.—Wm. M. Bray of Oshkosh, and E. L. Philipp, Milwaukee, are men much discussed for the gubernatorial governorship nomination at the Stalwart convention this afternoon.

E. P. Hixon, a wealthy La Crosse lumberman, was favored for the United States senate nomination.
The delegates gathered in front of the Park hotel at 1:45 o'clock and led by a band, marched to the university gymnasium. At the convention door, Dr. J. M. Smith, former Madison assemblyman, acted as servant at arms and demanded credentials of all comers.

As the band struck up "On Wisconsin,"
E. L. Philipp entered the hall.
The delegates gathered slowly owing to the extreme heat, which resulted in removing their coats.

At 2:15 the hall contained 2,000.
Philipp called the meeting to order.
Philip Greys Delegates

Several hundred delegates swarmed to the republican state headquarters at the new Park hotel this morning, in anticipation of the opening of their state convention at the gymnasium this afternoon.
E. L. Philipp mingled with the crowd meeting the delegates as they came from Milwaukee, La Crosse, Barabois and other places. Early in the day he predicted that the convention would grow above his expectations and would consist of 1,000 delegates.
Platform makers worked all night preparing their declaration of principles. The object was to declare against the democratic tariff law and against extravagance in the matter of state appropriations.

The convention committee retained rooms on the second floor of the new Park Hotel, where the delegates will meet to secure their badges.
These are red, white and blue, and printed in gold, and the words
"Republican convention," with streamers on which read "lower taxes and business administration."

Monahan Opens Session.
Setting the meeting as the "home coming of the republicans," the convention was opened by James G.
Monahan, as temporary chairman of the conservative republican convention, in a keynote speech this afternoon, said that they all believed in a moderate protective tariff, economy instead of extravagance, and state university rather than university state, and a restoration of the rights and liberties that had been lost by an army of commissioners.

"We, the stalwarts, are not to blame for the condition complained of and you, the progressives, can not be blamed for the condition. You have betrayed you," began Mr. Monahan.
"No leaders have a more honest and devoted band of followers than the progressive party and you, the stalwarts, have been betrayed by those leaders, than they. You were promised a minimum taxation yet since 1900, state taxation has increased from four million to eighteen million annually. You were promised representative government instead you have been robbed of the liberties enjoyed by your forebears and yourselves, and today you are enjoying home rule and a government by some fifty commissions and thousands of commissioners, many of whom have never had any experience in public, never engaged in business, and never employed labor merely because they are lazy in paying their debts. Yet, too, many of this class of men have hardened to the call of the Wisconsin people with a selfish, unselfish, digging, its way out of a labyrinth of butchers and grocers' bills, and are today telling the manufacture and agriculture interests of the state how to conduct their business. They tell the farmer to keep the price of his wheat down to tax him, and rob them of liberty, and when complaints are made call us 'barbaric yappers' and 'bandits.'"

All Theories Welcomed.
"Wisconsin has been determined the final depository of the theories various, quacks, fancies of the law, and whether they have come to us from no-man-land, New Zealand, or the land of the River of Doubt, they have been to K. D. by the high-browed theorists."

"Build your institutions sky-ward," he said, "but first see that the foundations are secure. Stand on your honest conviction without fear or favor. Stand by the wishes of the people who sent you here, and be sure that as day follows darkness, on next election night the people from the old hacker state, from Illinois, to the Mississippi and from Superior to the Illinois line, man and wife in singing the hymn, 'Praise God From Whom All Blessings Flow,' for the work of this convention will have been endorsed."

WORKMEN ARE BURIED
WHEN BROOKLYN SUBWAY
HAS A CAVE-IN TODAY

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, June 23.—Nearly half a block of sidewalk and superstructure over the new Brooklyn subway caved today, burying more than twenty workmen, killing one and badly injuring six. A wagon and team of horses were engulfed, and one animal killed. Many tons of debris filled the excavation and firemen and police rescued dug out the injured. The superintendent and foreman of the job were arrested, pending an investigation.

FRUIT LINER AND SCOW COLLIDE IN HARBOR NEAR
NEW YORK; NO ONE HURT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, June 23.—The United Fruit liner Penadros, inbound from West Indian ports, met in collision with a scow outside the harbor today.
The scow was stove in but the Penadros received no damage. One of the Penadros' passengers was hurt but not seriously. The scow was carrying forty passengers on board, but no one was hurt.

TWO GERMAN LINERS
IN COLLISION TODAY

Both Vessels Are Badly Damaged But Passengers Are Safely Landed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Hamburg, June 23.—The North German Lloyd steamer Koenigstein and the German passenger steamer Cobra, were in a collision today. Both were damaged. The passengers were landed safely. The stern of the Koenigstein was stove in and her fore-peak was leaking.

The Cobra, a small steamship of 412 tons, was badly damaged amidships. She did not carry cabin passengers.

Steamer Hits Rock.

London, June 23.—The steamer Gothland from Montreal for Rotterdam went ashore today on a rock two miles to the northeast of the Bishop Rock, Scilly Island.

Two steamers went to the assistance of the Gothland, which formerly belonged to the Red Star line, but was under charter to the Canadian line. She carried 120 passengers and thirty-four third class passengers on board. She does not carry cabin passengers.

BURNING OIL DRIVES
OUT WHOLE VILLAGE

Score of Families Return to Homes
When Fire Is Checked In Mining Town.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, June 23.—After a night of terror, the people of Meadowland, a little mining town near here, returned home yesterday, which they had forsaken when it seemed the village would be engulfed by a torrent of burning oil. Twenty-four families were rendered homeless by the fire were camped on the hills until officers of the United Coal Company could find them more comfortable quarters.

Deputies and constables were mixed up in the confusion. Some of those who had been hurt in the panic last night, but none were seriously injured. The oil in the tank, struck by lightning Sunday night, burned itself out, although great masses of black smoke rolled up from the spot where the tank stood. The tank contained 25,000 barrels of oil. Last night when an erruption scattered the oil, the other line in the vicinity was threatened.
The workmen diverged and the town was saved. It is said the loss would reach $75,000.

MAXIMUM FINES FOR GIVING GIRL LIQUOR

Judge Maxfield Finds Bert Premo and Tony Martin Guilty of States' Charges.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

After the testimony of Maud Lawrence, aged thirteen years, in the municipal court yesterday afternoon, Judge Maxfield convicted Tony Martin, an Italian, who is the railway tower tender on Jackson street, and Bert Premo, aged seventeen years, of giving intoxicating liquor to a minor.
The maximum fines were imposed, each of the defendants being fined fifty dollars and costs and thirty days in the county jail at hard labor. In default of the fines, sixty additional days in jail were provided by the court.

District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie prosecuted the case and closely questioned the girl on her treatment by the Italian and Premo at the tower.
The evidence showed that Premo had purchased a pail of beer from a nearby saloonkeeper and offered the pail to the Lawrence girl who drank the liquor.

The Lawrence girl testified that she had drunk liquor at the tower at previous times which had been given her by Tony Martin. Policemen William Gower and Sam Brown, who made the arrest yesterday noon, also testified stating they found the beer hidden under a chair. The three were brought to the station and arraigned before Judge Maxfield at four o'clock.

District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie
filed a petition in the municipal court charging that the Lawrence girl be declared incorrigible. Under the provisions of the new juvenile court act a summons will be issued by Judge Maxfield directing the parent of the girl to appear before the court Friday last, when an examination will be held on the charges.

Martin paid his fifty dollar fine and was paroled out to the railroad company to serve his thirty day jail sentence. Premo was committed to the county jail and during his parole his wages will go to the county.
Further investigation is being made by Chief of Police Champion of the case.

Making Canoe Trip: Elbert Carpenter of Racine, and Harry Stearns of Madison, were in this city over Sunday, the guests of Miss Marjorie Vankirk. The young men are making a canoe trip from Madison to Dixon, Ill. They expect to arrive at their destination before Saturday.

CONVENTION OPENS
AT CHICAGO TONIGHT

Delegates Arrive for Fourteenth Triennial Sunday School Convention in Chicago for Week.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, June 23.—Nearly 5,000 delegates and alternates and several thousand visitors from all parts of the world were in Chicago today for the opening of the fourteenth triennial Sunday School convention.
The convention will be in session here for one week. "Jesus Shall Reign" is the convention keynote, printed on cards and flashed in electric signs. It will be the object of the convention session to be preached at the opening session in the Medinah temple tonight. Rev. C. P. Anderson, bishop of the Chicago diocese of the Episcopal church.

Medinah temple, with a seating capacity of 6,000 will be the convention hall, but while the delegates are in session there, the church will be held daily in twelve of the largest city churches. Conferences, congresses and discussions by smaller Chicago churches while the main body of delegates is transacting the convention's business. National and state prohibition, the relationship of the Sunday school to the public school, and the Sunday school's responsibility to foreign-speaking peoples, are three of the most important topics to be discussed at the convention. Among the speakers will be Richmond Pearson Hobson and Booker T. Washington. A mammoth parade, in which convention leaders hope to see 50,000 men in line, will move through the loop district on Saturday afternoon. The parade will be commenced by the Sunday school conferences will consider every phase of Sunday school work. There will be conferences on evangelism, rural Sunday schools, Sunday school music, of Sunday school, temperance and musical. Special conferences will relate to Sunday school work among college students. The report of Marion Lawrence, general secretary of the International Association, will be read at a brief forenoon session tomorrow.
The afternoon will be given over to conferences and in the evening Rev.
W. J. Williamson of St. Louis and Dr.
Edward A. Steiner, president of Grinnell college, Grinnell, Iowa, will speak.

Missionaries in this country on furthering the Sunday school. Thursday night following a day of conferences and brief addresses. Rev. John Timothy Stone, former moderator of the Presbyterian general assembly, and other speakers will be heard at the retire of the board of Sunday schools of the M. E. church, are speakers at the evening session. A festival concert with a chorus of 1,900 girls, will be given in the Auditorium this Friday night. As one of the special features of the convention, Presiding the concert the "superintendent" senate will convene at the Auditorium hotel, Sunday school superintendents are discussing many problems.
At the same hour, Prof. William A.
Wirt, superintendent of the model public schools at Gary, Ind., will speak on the public school co-operation with the Sunday schools.

Hillcrest, Ala., June 23.—With the majority of the hard-buried, hill-country miners, attention is being turned today to the wants of the hundred homes that are dependent upon the 195 miners killed last Friday. Relief committees have been organized to attend to their wants.

United mine workers' officials today announced the following figures of last Friday's disaster by an explosion in mine number 20:
Rescued alive, 41 men; total dead, 196; bodies rescued, 188; bodies still in mine, 8.

Chicago, June 23.—A new thing in the way of conventions opened here today when the saddlery manufacturers of the Wholesale Saddlery Association of the United States convened in the Auditorium hotel. The saddlery wholesalers will be in convention for two days, but with the exception of an address of welcome and a response there are no speeches on the program. The saddlery manufacturers, who will open their meeting tomorrow, are continuing Thursday morning the wholesalers one better by dispensing with all set speeches and informal talks. Theatre parties, boat rides and places on the program for the two conventions.

New Orleans, June 23.—Fresh from a visit to General Carranza, Fernando Calderon, a leader of the liberal party in Mexico, is enroute to Washington to confer with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, not as a representative of Carranza, but as a leader of the liberal party. With him is Alfredo Brededa, Carranza's private secretary, and R. F. Villa, Carranza's constitutionalist officer of General Carranza, arrived here yesterday and probably will leave for Washington tonight.

Calderon emphasized today in a declaration that he would not represent Carranza in any negotiations.
His traveling companions stated that Calderon might come as a go-between.

Carranza is firm in his attitude that he will not treat with Huerta except on the battlefield, Brededa said.
"We are on a very important mission to Washington, which we cannot talk about but it is not to meet with representatives of Huerta formally or informally."

That the commissioner intended to be fully informed of the situation at Washington and Niagara Falls, was stated by Calderon today. He was
from Washington, of J. F. Uriguidi, secretary of the constitutional representatives in Washington. Uriguidi said he was in New Orleans on an-

That the commissioner intended to
be fully informed of the situation at Washington and Niagara Falls, was stated by Calderon today. He was
from Washington, of J. F. Uriguidi,
secretary of the constitutional representatives in Washington. Uriguidi
said he was in New Orleans on another mission, but would be here tomorrow, but for what place he would not say. If he had a message for the commissioners he did not make it public.

will be held at Niagara Falls tomorrow, but for what place he would not say. If he had a message
for the commissioners he did not

MILWAUKEE BREWERS PLAYING POOR GAME

Champs of A. A. Last in Hitting and Fielding Average Yet in First Division.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Milwaukee, Wis., June 23.—The Milwaukee champions of the American Association have the fans of the entire league guessing this year. All through the first part of the season they have been out in the front rank, leading the way, sometimes sharing the honors with Jack Hendrick's Indians and occasionally dropping back into second place to grab a breath before beginning another sprint.

But what gets the fans to guessing and the statistics fenders to dreaming, eating and living figures and averages is: How in time can the Brewers hold their place while the club occupies the last places in both the fielding and batting averages?

Various explanations have been offered—the favorite being that the champs are lucky. Another is that the pitchers have been going so much better than those of any other club that a few few hits will put the game on ice. The gloomier fans predict that a turn in the luck is about due and that the middle of July will find the club far down in the list. This belief is strengthened by the fact that the race is exceptionally close. Early last week, just before the Cleveland invasion of the local ball yard only three and one-half games difference existed between the first and seventh place. The loss of a few straight games would push the leaders down into the second division.

Very few changes have been made in the club's lineup this year. Manager Harry Clark evidently believed that the same old organization could repeat the stunt of last year. The loss of Lena Blackburne as a severe. That brilliant fielder and dependable batsman was replaced by Jap Barbey, a player who has been in the association several years. His work this year has been erratic. While he has an inexhaustible supply of pep, his play has been erratic. He has a way of letting the ball roll through his fingers when the games hinges on his ability to hang on to it. His batting also has been weak.

"Fap" Felch, a local product, caused a commotion during the training season and during the first weeks of the campaign but his work of late has been a disappointment. "Fap" was started in the centerfield and later was shifted into left. He had a habit of breaking up games by driving a homer out occasionally and during the first few weeks they have found his weaknesses and the reason has been decorating the bench while Ralph Capron, former Minnesota university athlete, has replaced him. Felch apparently swings blindly at the ball. He had no success in placing his hits and a single was unknown. The least he could hit was a double while his favorite was a home run.

"Pop" Clark, boss of the crew, plays third in his old style, letting the ball dribble past him occasionally but making up for his errors by the delivery of a timely punch in cases of need. Old Tom Jones at first is a failure. Phil Lewis, Cornell university star is making a record both in fielding and batting. Joe Burr, utility man, is demonstrating his class both in the field and at bat and the fans expect to see him a regular when a short time. Bill and Randall, outfielders, are old timers at the game, doing little that is sensational but holding up their end. Hughes, behind the bat is another old timer of recognized class. He has Leo McGraw, a graduate of the western league as second string catcher. McGraw has not yet received his real baptism in the league.

That there will be changes in the lineup is almost certain unless the Brewers take to stuffing their ears. The acquisition of a few new players shows that the owners realize the club's weakness. Meanwhile faint hearted fans are praying that luck or science, or whatever it is that holds the champs near the top, will continue.

The paradoxical situation of the team but they appear to believe that they have the right to win games. And that belief does the business.

Sport Snap Shots

Ban Johnson, the American-league president, has recently said some very bitter things about players who jump to the feds. After a number of remarks regarding the feds, he said that the players were very slim, according to Ban, he continued with a line of comment on big league jumpers that was indeed very cutting. For example it is an awful thing for a player to say that he is in the same to get all that he can out of it. He is serving notice on the public that he would accept money to throw a game. Once let the public become imbued with the belief that ball players are there merely for what there is in it and the teams will be playing to $2 a game and glad to get that by passing the bat. This seems to be just a little more bitter than needs be. To say that a player would take money to throw a game just because he admits he wants to get as good a salary as he can is impugning some what upon the confines of fact. The average fan would regard a player as being quite a bit of a simp if he denied that he was working for a living and said that he played ball for the pure enjoyment of it. Day in and out it must come to be very much like any other job.

Clark Griffith, the Washington manager, should get a gardenia for the manner in which he has trained young Griff was a pitcher of class himself in the days of some while ago and he has forgotten none of the tricks. In fact, today there is perhaps not a better tutor for youth than the old pitcher in his country. The Old Fox never makes a mistake when he picks a youngster as a promising pitcher and he has taken hold of quite a few and trained them up to the stars. The prevalent notion is that Clark Griffith has been getting hold of unusually good stuff. The truth of the matter is that he's wise. He knows the real thing when he sees it and he knows how to develop it. Consider Ayres, Spaw and Bentley, all young men who have won admiration on every side this season, and Griffith can be applauded for the biggest part of it. "I give more time and thought to my young pitchers than to any other department of the team," says Clark. "I show them all I ever knew about the business and I work away at them until they get the hang of it." And what alone is the reason why the Washington club have a goodly supply of youthful pitching stuff.

The high-speed playing of the Cincinnati Reds this season is the more remarkable when one considers the many disadvantages they have had to encounter. Had any one been able to foresee the many misfortunes that would befall them it would have been thought highly improbable that they would advance much beyond last place. For years and years they have been regarded as more or less of a baseball joke. Discouragement, disension and all manner of other unhappy traits characterized the club. They started out with a new manager, which is not so unusual, but he was a very young one, being the youngest in the business. And the new manager found himself in charge of a team that had been dragged into the depths of despair and sorrow at the close of the season before. Moreover, the bunch was a hard one to control. The feds got to them and took five away—Jackson, Wickland, Hartley, and Packard. And out of the indifferent bunch that was left Charlie Herzog contrived to build up one of the fastest teams of the league. It would seem that Fortune smiled at Charlie in a most friendly fashion or else it is a remarkable young man. His achievement with the Cincinnati Reds is worth unstinted applause.

Billy Murray, middleweight, who recently put Al McCoy out of the reckoning as a champ possibility by beating him thoroughly in two encounters, is now back on the coast and training hard for his coming fight with George Chip. It is thought that Murray will have very little trouble in making the 153 pounds, as he is weighing only about 160 now. The Chip-Murray fight will attract a great deal of interest and will go a long way toward settling the rather turbulent affairs of the middleweight division. Some day we may have a sure-enough middle champ.

Pat Levinsky is on his honeymoon and Dan Morgan, his manager, is re-joining. Without Levinsky to work for him Morgan feels that he isn't making money, but at that he has more than a few dozen other fighters working for him most of the while. He is the busy and capable little managing person, this Morgan.

Roger Bresnahan's recent performance with the Cubs has getting a decided rise out of all who have seen him cavort. He has been leading the bunch at bat and stealing bags like a youngster. If it could be said that Bresnahan ever slumped in his baseball experience then he has been staging a wonderful comeback. Billy Sullivan, the White Sox catcher has been in the game seventeen years and he considers himself something of a vet. But in this matter he has nothing on Roger. Sullivan admits that Bresnahan was playing professional ball and catching behind the bat long before Billy started out. "And he's been scampering over the field like a fresh recruit," says Sullivan, unable to conceal his wonder and admiration. "He's one of the marvels of the game."

STRONG CREWS ENTER IN BRITISH EVENTS

Race for Grand Challenge Cup First Week of July—Many Nations Represented in Event.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, June 23.—English oarsmen are seriously concerned over the "foreign invasion" of Henley. The coming of crews from America, Canada and Germany to row for the Grand Challenge Cup in the first week of July has set them to figuring as to what they can depend to defend English prowess, which in this event has only four times lowered its flag to the foreigner.

The first foreign victory was in 1906 when the Belgians won the cup. They repeated the victory in 1907 and again in 1909, while an Australian crew took the cup in 1912. However, this year the oarsmen are watching the Americans more closely, remembering how near the Vesper Boat Club of Philadelphia came to winning in 1905.

With all this competition, England this year finds herself sadly lacking in first class material. "The Leander Club, which in previous years could be depended upon to put a strong crew on the river, has not been receiving so many rowing recruits lately. Formerly it was the usual thing for rowing men from all the Universities and Colleges to join Leander on graduation and to keep up their rowing for some years afterwards. Now more men from the universities go into business and have not the time to devote to training, or else they go abroad.

Only recently the Leander Club lost its captain, Stanley Gartin, and this position has fallen to A. F. R. Higgins, a former president of the Oxford University Boat Club. He will have the assistance of R. Bourne, Clark, a Cambridge blue, and Horstall, another University oarsman. Where the others are to come from has not yet been disclosed.

What Oxford and Cambridge will do in the way of crews cannot yet be stated as their summer races come very late this year and until they are over no crews will be made up.

SLATE MOTOR RACES HERE JULY FOURTH

Automobile and Motorcycle Events Will be Staged on Driving Park Association Tracks.

The Wisconsin Motor Racing Association has leased the Janesville driving park and will stage a combination automobile and motorcycle race meet on July 4th. This event will be entirely outside of the celebration planned by the citizens' committee, the tracks having been leased on Monday by Secretary Putnam to the race promoters.

Mulford, with the 100-h. p. Cutting racer, driven by Bob Burman at Indianapolis last year, will endeavor to lower the local track record. This car is capable of and has attained a speed of 110 miles per hour on the Indianapolis speedway.

A feature event will be the match race between Burman's Cutting and the Jackson racing car, which was driven by Cobe at Indianapolis, winning the $10,000 Wheeler and Schebler trophy in 1910 and placing second in the same event the following year.

Comstock, the well known professional motorcycle star, riding a Jackson machine, will compete in the motorcycle events against Oakes and Keock of Oshkosh. Timmons, the aviator-motorcyclist, who won the principal events at the last meet held on the local tracks, and many others.

The real feature of the day will be a match race between Mulford in the Cutting car and Fiske of Belmont on a ported Indian racing motorcycle. Fiske holds the 10-mile Wisconsin state championship and should give Mulford a good run for the money.

THE MUCKRAKER MUST GO.

Leslie's magazine hits the nail on the head when it makes this declaration and then follows it up by saying:

"A man is not a patriotic citizen unless he is ready to fight for his flag.
 A father is unfit to be the head of a family unless he will shed his blood to defend it. A business man will fail unless he will fight to the bitter end against anything that would destroy his business. No man is afraid of criticism, for criticism honestly made is helpful, but every man has a right to resent slander."

"Every noisy disturber in the country, no matter how violent his opinions may have been, has had a hearing in our muckraking publications.
 So it came to pass, that the notoriety seeker in public office, discovering that the easiest way to secure publicity was by following the disturber, spent his time in denouncing big business and conjuring up new statutes to inflict additional hardships upon it."

"With ferocity like that of a wild beast tasting fresh blood, the yellow press and muckraking magazines have pursued the innocent and the guilty alike. As business was regulated, and the acknowledged evils of the past were cured, one would have thought that the crusades against our captains of industry would have ceased, but they have continued to grow beyond the bound not only of fairness, but also of decency. Letters stolen from the files of employers by larcenous employees have been bought and published under glaring headlines, separated from their context, their meaning distorted, and explanations omitted in the wild hunger to make them as sensational and incriminating as possible. Trifles have been grossly magnified, the truth deliberately suppressed and purposes wilfully misrepresented."

"This could not go on forever. Even the worm will turn. At last the business men who have been the main support of every muckraking publication—for none could survive but for its advertising patronage—saw the light. They realized that warfare was being made against them and they determined to fight back. This accounts in great part for the shrinkage in the advertising income of numerous publications of the yellow class.
 If they have suffered, they should not complain. If they suffer still more, they will get only their deserts."

JUSTICE TO ALL.

Within the past forty-eight hours the police have become most active in arresting violators of the law and Justice Maxfield is meting out sentences to the guilty. This speaks well for the police government of the city. Chief of Police Champion is playing no favorites and his work is to be recommended. He should have the backing of the city administration and citizens generally in his efforts to make Janesville a clean city morally.

Some weeks ago the retail liquor dealers of the city organized and passed stringent rules and regulations which were signed by all members and copies given to each. Violations of the city ordinances and state laws were especially referred to and the sale of liquor after hours and to minors particularly dealt with.

To add to this large placards of the law and its requirements both on the part of minors and saloon men, were printed and distributed in various salons so that there is no possible mistake in the mean and import of the law, its requirements, and its penalties.

Monday saw one retail liquor dealer before the court for selling liquor to boys and after hours at that. He paid his fine. Late the same afternoon saw a second case of where a retailer sold beer to a minor who gave it to another minor, a girl, to drink. Both were violations of the law. Both should be punished and not only punished by court action, but by their own retailers' association and by the city administration that will shortly issue new licenses for the coming year.

If the Retail Liquor Men's association is organized to help enforce the law this is their opportunity to become active. The eyes of the general public are upon them and prompt action is necessary. These men have knowingly violated the law and they should be punished. Public sentiment demands it and if the association to which they belong and to which they swore allegiance but a few weeks ago, fails in this the first case to be called to public attention they are recreant in their duty.

WHITEHEAD MENTIONED.

Up at Madison today the old line conservative republicans are holding an old-fashioned state convention.
 The "do-gooders" who always have advance information as to the business to be attended to, mention that that convention may probably select John M. Whitehead of Janesville as the choice of the men present for United States senator. If there was a possibility of electing a man of true worth for the office of United States senator this fall on the republican ticket, John M. Whitehead would be the man for the office. His worth as a man, his value as a citizen, his standing as a statesman are unquestioned and he would grace the office of senator from Wisconsin in the United States senate at Washington as few men sent there by Wisconsin in the past few years have done. If there is a possibility of Whitehead's nomination at the September primaries he should be urged to make the race.

VILLA OBSTINATE.

Villa is an obstinate sort of a cuss.
 He has the whip hand on Carranza at present and means to keep it. He is going to be the general, the fighting man of the revolutionists and he wants the world to know it. His rise from a mercenary bandit to general commanding an army that is recognized by no less personages than President Wilson and Silver Tongued William Jennings Bryan, is something he feels proud of and he means to keep his hold on the armies of Northern Mexico if possible.

Wilson is having a fine time down in Washington listening to protests from the Turkish representatives against selling Greece two old battleships and from the Grecian representative urging that they be sold to his country at once. The President is bawling the "Devil and the deep Sea" and the dove of peace is wondering where he can fight.

Tomorrow is circus day. Residents of this city are urged to see to it that their doors and windows are safely locked before they leave home to witness the parade or performances. While the circus employs a force of detectives it can not protect citizens from the petty thieves that always follow in the wake of shows.

The average man who is learning to drive an auto finds there are lots of things about the "pesky" thing he never imagined. It will climb banks when least expected if given the slightest encouragement.

That noble peace prize is still as far above the reach of Bryan as ever despite the desperate efforts of the
 A. B. C. peace delegates. Anyway Niagara Falls is a good place to enjoy a vacation period.

The citizens of Janesville recognize the need of endorsing the movement to bring to Janesville a new factory and after the fourth an active campaign can be waged in its behalf.

Summer.

Now is the summer of our discontent.
 When old man Fahrenheit on fendish mischief bent
 Sends mercury scooting up the

 Alas!
 The fat man starts to worry, stew and fret,
 And has to stick right here upon the job.

Where they may dance the tango and

And cavort
 And gaily shirk
 While he must work.
 Or be hauled up in some town court
 For non-support.
 The white man's burden he must attend to:
 In other words he is the goat.
 While asphalt boils out in the street
 He must stand by amid the heat
 And hold the job.
 This poor old job
 Who weighs two hundred ninety-five,
 And wonders if he'll stay alive
 Until the chilly breezes blow
 And bring with them the sleet and snow.
 Let skinny folks rejoice all that they please,
 And let them brag about their summer ease;
 But let them not forget to say
 A few kind words, perhaps to pray,
 For men who have to stagger through
 The blistering heat as fat men do.

Uncle Abner.

Lem Higgins says he is the only fellow in this town who knows what real trouble is. He has got four marriageable but unattractive daughters. The only suitor who ever showed up at his home was a crayon portrait agent who lived on Lem for two weeks while canvassing the neighborhood and then disappeared between two days.

The fellow who gets up the costumes for the musical comedy milkmaids never lived on a farm.

There ain't nothing much more embarrassing to a fellow than a photograph of himself taken with his high school graduation class.

Every fellow who is an authority on every subject under the sun ain't never good for anything else.

It is pretty hard for even a president of the United States to look dignified if his necktie is climbing up over the back of his collar.

Hank Purdy's hired man is so lazy that he kin sit on a barb wire fence for an hour and a half.

The antique craze she early caught,
 She loved the old things, all.

Sufficient antiques she had bought
 To fill a good sized hall.

She had a rare old davenport,
 A highboy and a bed

That had four posts and cost her quite

A lot of coin, 'twas said.
 She had old china, old brass lamps,

And tapestries galore.
 She had collected quite enough

Old junk to start a store.
 She worshipped old things, yes, she

As only faddists can.
 But one old thing she criticized,

And that was her old man.

NEW BOOKS FOR VACATION READING OUT AT LIBRARY

Patrons of the Janesville Public Library who are leaving the city for vacation will, as usual, be granted special privileges. On application vacation cards will be issued, on which the books may be kept for a period of six weeks.
Ten books, of which six may be fiction, may be taken on adult cards. On children's cards six may be drawn, four of which may be fiction.
No magazines and no books added within the past six months will be loaned on these cards.
During past summers these vacation privileges have been much appreciated, especially by those visiting the many river and lake resorts in this vicinity.

FORTY-FIVE AERIES AT ANTIGO MEETING

"Antigo Dick" Mascot of Lodge Will Be Awarded to City Securing Next Convention.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Antigo, Wis., June 23.—Antigo was the center of Eagledom today. Aeries in all sections of the state sent their delegates to this city for an entertainment that is scheduled to last until Friday evening. There are forty-five aeries in the state which will send large delegations while there will be several uniformed drill teams.
Besides the business sessions which will attract most of the delegates, local Eagles planned a number of entertainments including automobile rides through the county, Indian war dances and games of lacrosse and theater parties.
Although Eagles were arriving at all hours today—on regular trains and on specials, the real business was not to be started until this evening when State President W. H. Armstrong of Racine was scheduled to respond to the address of welcome by Mayor J. D. Stiffen.
"Antigo Dick" the eagle—mascot of the local aerie—will be awarded to the city securing the next annual convention and is to be passed on down the line each year until he flies no more. Besides this, which was regarded as the prize of prizes, the local lodge has arranged a number of other prizes for the drill teams, the largest delegation, etc.

RECREATIONAL SURVEY IS BEING CONDUCTED IN CITY OF MADISON

Madison, Wis., June 23.—The Recreational Survey, under the direction of Prof. Clarke W. Hetherington of the University of Wisconsin, is working on a comprehensive survey of conditions in Madison and is seeking to learn just what children and adults do with their spare time, and what factors influence them in their use of spare time. During the summer several members of the committee will conduct investigations into commercial recreation centers, refreshments, postcards, billboards, amusements, school houses as recreational centers, churches and clubs, and will endeavor to improve play and recreational facilities.

PRINCE OF WALES IS TWENTY TODAY.

London, June 22.—The Prince of Wales, King George's eldest son and heir to the British throne, is celebrating his twentieth birthday today, and in honor of the event artillery salutes were fired in St. James' Park, London, and at Windsor and all the big naval and military centers. Flares were flown on all government buildings, and the diplomatic representatives of the various nations tendered their congratulations on behalf of their rulers. The Prince is taking a couple of days holiday from his studies at Oxford University, to celebrate the event. Born in 1894, he was created Prince of Wales shortly after his father ascended the throne. As the next heir, he automatically became Duke of Cornwall on his father's accession, and next year when he becomes of age he will take complete control of the revenues of the duchy as his own private pocket-money. These together with his other resources, including his salary of $250,000 (from the British government) make him a millionaire. The Prince's full names, style and titles are: Duke of Cornwall, Earl of Chester, Duke of Rothesay, Prince of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles and Great Steward of Scotland.

WILL CONTINUE STUDY OF PELLAGRA IN SOUTH

Madison, Wis., June 22.—Dr. William F. Lorenz of the Wisconsin state hospital for the insane, at Mendota, who, on leave of absence granted by the state board of control, has been engaged for about six months in the investigation of pellagra in the south, for the United States public health service, has been granted an additional two months' leave. He was to return to Wisconsin, July 1, but at the urgent request of Surgeon General Eliot that Dr. Lorenz continue his work in the south he will not return until September 1. The request to the board of control was conveyed in a telegram from the surgeon general, who, it is understood, regards the work of Dr. Lorenz as of vital importance in the eventual solution of a problem which has long been a mooted question—the causes of pellagra. Dr. Lorenz is located at Milledgeville, Georgia, but his fields of investigation include all the pellagra districts of the south.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

CHOOSING.

There is a certain type of mind which shrinks from a decision as a cat from water.

"What are you carrying those two books for?" I asked a friend the other day. "You cannot possibly read them both this afternoon." "I couldn't make up my mind which I wanted to read," she explained, "so I brought them both."

That attempt to compromise, to find a middle course, to avoid in one way or another the crucial choice is typical.

I know another woman who carried two suitcases of clothing for a week-end visit simply because she could not make up her mind which of the two sets of costumes she preferred to wear. Whether she finally wore two dresses at once in order to avoid a choice, I am not informed. All I know is that she was actually willing to burden herself with an extra suitcase in order to put off the agony of choice as long as possible.

Most of us have had the experience of trying to crowd two pleasures into the same day because we could not choose between them. And most of us have found that both were spoiled by the hurry and confusion and fuss which the overloading involved.

The inability to choose is a fatal flaw in character. A man's choices are his life. We build our characters and our destinies by the choices we make.

Life is a perpetual forcing choice upon us. Sometimes she shows us a moment, or less, then she says, "Which hand will you have?" And we can only guess as wisely as possible.

A man who wants to forge a decisive character and a destiny worth while must learn to choose wisely and with reasonable promptness.

The big men in business are those who make the choices. One day I sat in the office of a man who is at the head of one of the biggest transportation concerns in the country. There were few papers on his desk, his telephone had so much time to give to me. Just then, I remarked, indeed, that he "The Steamship So-and-So is at Santa Marta, and the captain wants to know where she is to go next." The general manager looked up at a map, his smile dimmed and an almost visible shadow of intense concentration came across his face. He studied the map a moment, or less, then he said decisively, "Send her to Havana." That was all, but I understood after that what he was there for, and why he received an enormous salary.

Learn to choose. Don't let the rust of indecision eat into your character. Remember that life is made up of choices, and that he who shrinks from choices shrinks from life itself.

MILK AS A TISSUE-FORMING FOOD.

Few people realize how much nourishment there is in milk, particularly how much tissue-forming material there is in it. They realize that it is rich in fat because they see cream rise upon it and know that it is made into butter, but of the fact that it is an important tissue-former they often lose sight. It happens that by far the greater part of the tissue-forming materials remain in the milk after it is skimmed or after the butter is removed from it, so for the purpose of building up the body skim milk counts for as much as an equal volume of whole milk and buttermilk is not far behind.

Milk does not appear to be very nourishing, probably because it is a liquid, while most other foods are solids. As a matter of fact, it is not a concentrated food, and if a person should try to substitute it for meat and to take only as much by weight as he does of the meat he would get very little nourishment. But think! It takes only two glasses of milk to weigh a pound, and many a person takes as much as this at a meal while he would never eat a pound of meat. So while milk has a small percentage of protein, as the tissue-builders of the food are sometimes called, it counts up in the long run because of the large quantities of it which a person naturally takes.

If you want to get an idea of how much protein there is in milk as compared with some other common foods, set aside by side a glass of milk (one fourth of a quart), a medium-sized egg (two ounces), a small ball of chopped meat (one and a quarter ounces) of boneless, medium fat beef mutton, pork, or other meat. Make 13 balls of equal size out of a pound of meat and you will get about the right amount, a piece of cheese half the size of an egg, and a scant quarter of a cupful of uncooked, or a half cupful of cooked navy beans or cow peas. (The amounts of beans and peas make allowance for the part which remains undigested. See Farmers' Bulletin 559, page 9.) These samples of food will, of course, not represent exactly equal amounts of protein, for all foods vary in composition, and besides round numbers have been selected for convenience. They will, however, serve to give an idea of what a glass of milk is equivalent to as a tissue-former.

Since milk is so valuable a source of nourishment, people naturally desire to know a large number of ways of using it. One good way to use milk, and skim milk in particular, is in making milk soup. This is good for the children and not difficult to prepare. Milk soups, too, are a good way of using up small amounts of vegetables which happen to be left over, for, of course, they are improved by being flavored. There is almost no vegetable which cannot be used for this purpose: tomatoes, asparagus, peas, corn, potatoes, squash, turnips, carrots, all are good, and if the amount available is small add a little onion to piece out with or onion alone can be used. Some people simply combine the vegetable, after they have put it through a sieve, with hot milk and season with salt or with salt and pepper. (Note: Wash the sieve at once or put it to soak and save much trouble.) Others thicken the soup with a little flour, which makes it seem more substantial, and still others add a little butter or cheaper fat, which they work into the soup more or less carefully. Here is a recipe for a soup made of cowpeas and milk taken from Farmers' Bulletin 559. Any other peas may be used.

Peggy & Company

Off to Chase Butterflies in the Cow Pastures With a Complete New Wardrobe

PREPARATIONS for Peggy's visit to the country went ahead with a stir and bustle that generally marks most every plan wherein Peggy's interests are centered.

Peggy's folks are pleased, of course, to think that their dear little daughter is to enjoy herself amidst the greenwood shades and verdant cow pastures. Indeed, they are very glad that their little sunshine is to spend a few pleasant days chasing butterflies and dallying with the brown-eyed heifers.

Father couldn't quite understand, it is true, why a place as insular as a farm should demand several new dresses. Aside from a large trunk, she is taking every bag and satchel in the house and a few extra boxes.

It is noticed on the way to the train that while Peggy carries her handkerchief and her head with an air, she is encumbered with little else. Tom labored along with only an occasional protesting grunt and manages pretty well with two large suitcases, a bathbox and several packages.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. The creaking of a door may be instantly stopped by rubbing the hinge with a piece of soap. It does not spoil the looks of the paint as if oil were used.

To keep coffee pot sweet put a teaspoonful of baking soda into it. Fill it two-thirds full of water and let it boil for an hour. Then rinse very thoroughly. If this is done about once a week the pot will always smell fresh and clean.

The odor of food does not agree with you, try eating onions. They are a good antidote and prevents nausea or other ill effects.

Wash all delicate colors with a good white soap; rinse well in strong salt water and dry in the shade. They will not be so liable to fade.

THE TABLE.

Salad a la Russe—Peel six tomatoes, remove thin slices from the top of each, and take out the seeds and pulp. Sprinkle the inside with salt. Invert, and let stand one-half hour. Place the seeds and pulp removed from the tomatoes in a strainer to drain. Mix one-third cup of cucumbers cut in dice, one-third cup of cold cooked peas, one-fourth cup of pickles finely chopped, one-third cup of tomato pulp, and two tablespoonfuls of capers. Season with salt, pepper and vinegar. Put in a cheese cloth and squeeze; then add one-half cup of cold cooked chicken cut in very small dice. Mix with mayonnaise dressing, refill the tomatoes, sprinkle with finely chopped parsley and place each on a lettuce leaf.

Vanilla Junket—Dissolve one rennet tablet in a tablespoonful of cold water. Stir this into a quart of milk that is just lukewarm that has been flavored with a teaspoonful of vanilla extract. Set in a warm room until needed. This dessert should not be made more than two hours before the meal for which it is intended, as long standing causes it to break and separate. Eat with sugar and cream.

Spinach Salad—Pick over, wash, and cook one-half peck of spinach. Drain and chop finely. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice, and add one tablespoonful of melted butter. Butter slightly small tin molds and pack solidly with the mixture. Chill, remove from the molds and arrange on thin slices of cold boiled tongue cut in circular pieces. Garnish the base of each with a wreath of parsley and serve on top of each sauce tartare.

Vanilla Blanc Manger—Soak a half package of gelatin in enough water to cover it and at the end of two hours stir into it a half cupful of sugar. Add this to a pint of scalding milk and stir until the gelatin is dissolved; remove from the fire, strain and flavor with a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pour into wet molds to form. When firm serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Bear Your Own Troubles. Things cannot always go your way. Learn to accept in silence the minor aggravations, cultivate the gift of taciturnity, and consume your own smoke with an extra draft of hard work, so that those about you may not be annoyed with the dust and soot of your complaints. —William Oeler.

Doing Well. "I haven't seen Peggy since she left college. Did she succeed in getting a good position?" "Better! She succeeded in getting a husband with a good position." —Pittsford Tizer.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

If a man casually exceeds, let him fast the next meal, and all may be well again provided it be not too often done; as if he exceed at dinner, let him refrain at supper.—Benjamin Franklin.

WHAT TO DO WITH OLD JELLY.

As few people care to take over to another year the old jelly, and as spring and summer days bring fresh fruit so much more acceptable, it may be wise to record a few ways of disposing of the old jelly.

For a drink one may always find a use for jelly, as a few teaspoonfuls of jelly, dissolved in a pitcher of water, sweetened, and a bit of lemon juice added, makes a most refreshing beverage. Ice and mineral water, of course, enhance the palatability of the drink.

A most delightful dessert may be made from a glass of jelly and the white of an egg beaten together until firm. Served in sherbet cups with a custard or with whipped cream. Although this is a simple dessert, it always seems very rich.

The old jellies, because somewhat dry and dark, will make ideal filling for fritters or doughnuts, rolled griddle cakes and such delicacies. Of course the finer the jelly the finer the dish, prepared with its accompaniment.

For pudding sauces jelly lends itself well, usually the addition of a bit of flavor, like lemon peel or orange peel, improves the flavor.

For Sunday night lunch jelly and cream whipped together and served on buttered toast makes a nice supper dish.

Jelly and Cream Pie.—Bake a rich shell for a pie and fill it with a layer of jelly with sweetened whipped cream spread over the top. Then it wanted very nice a meringue may be put on top and slightly browned in a quick oven.

The old-fashioned tarts that grandmother used to make are still the delight of the child's heart. They are simply rich pastry cut in circles and matched with one which has the center removed like a doughnut. When these are baked and a bit of bright-colored jelly is placed on one, covered with the one with the hole in the center, the jelly stands up like a ruby jewel and tastes as good as it looks.

Hot popovers cut open, buttered and a teaspoonful of jelly put into the center, make a pleasant little cake for children.

Nellie Maxwell

GRANDMA SEZ

"My son William sez that his garden seems mighty big tew him when he's a diggin' it, but it seems tew him a right sight up when he's a showin' it tew one of his country cousins."

Fun for the Children.

Soak a cupful of dried peas over night. They then can be easily pierced. At the same time provide a box of wooden toothpicks. By combining the two your children will find amusement by the hour in making playthings of every description.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am eleven years old.

(1) Will you please tell me some remedy for dandruff? My hair is thin and not long, caused by dandruff.

(2) What name would you suggest for a new park in a small town?

(3) Will you please give me a molasses candy recipe?

(4) Please give me a formula for making a castor oil into your scalp every night, then brush your hair thoroughly with a clean brush.

(5) I do not think any harm was done when you allowed the young man to sit at the church altar and know each other by reputation, was a fairly good introduction.

The young man is trying you out, as he tries out other girls. If you let him kiss you, you will not be the first by any means. He probably thinks you are like all the others.

I don't think he is in love with you, dear. A man likes to kiss any fairly nice looking girl, and it is a sign that he loves her. You can at least hold his respect by refusing to be cheap.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) Would you please tell me how to make good egg sandwiches?

(2) I am a twenty-seven years old. Am I too old to have a girl friend?

(3) A fried egg sandwich is good. Fry the egg, turn it, put a fresh lettuce leaf on a piece of buttered bread, then the egg, salt and pepper and another slice of bread. Or, slice hard-boiled eggs, mix with mayonnaise or mustard dressing, and put between lettuce leaves and buttered bread. Chopped egg and olives or pickles makes a nice sandwich. Always combine lettuce or water cress with egg sandwiches.

(4) No, indeed! You are more apt to get a sincere real MAN for a beau at your age than a girl in her teens.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

Clothes that are ready-to-wear, for every member of the family, can be bought so cheap that at first thought it seems the acme of economy to keep the wardrobe replenished from this class of goods. This, however, is a question to be settled by the individual, as no two homes are run on the self-same plan. A system that would work with clock-like regularity in one home would cause chaos in another, so when we read the opinions and ideas that are put before us we must, before putting them into practice, see if they be applicable to our own case.

A woman with one or two children naturally has more time to do her sewing than the pressed for time mother of five or six. Where the former could save by such a method the latter would be putting herself under what one could truthfully call an unnecessary strain.

Men, in the doing of their work, generally know just which course to pursue to obtain the greatest possible results with the least possible labor. That sounds like a lesson in arithmetic, but if we did the same thing there would be fewer cranky women, fewer wives who would wear it to complain the moment their husbands get within earshot of the house each evening; fewer mothers who were too tired to take an interest in the doings of their children.

Children's everyday underclothes can be purchased so cheap that it is a waste of precious time to make them. We may not quote prices on anything in this column, but you cannot make these little garments so as to put the cost below the finished product. A trip to any of our stores will convince you of this, and as most of these pieces are made of ribbed jersey that requires no ironing they are a veritable fairy gift to the average mother.

When it comes to nightshirts for the youthful hand the question takes on a new view. You can make the nightshirts cheaper than you can purchase them, unless you happen to get in on the ground floor of an unusual sale. Pretty light calico can be had at small cost and if purchased by the bolt it is a cent or a cent and a half cheaper a yard. If you are not in favor of light calico for nightshirts, there is one brand of white cotton cloth that is almost as cheap, though until you have tried the light calico do not condemn it, as it fills the bill for a household of children admirably well. The difference, too, in price, counts on a bolt, and as most of us are forced to curtail fears and reluctant parting of our pennies it is not a half bad scheme to try the calico or cheaper grade of white cloth.

In making small garments it is a wise plan to cut out several at a time, as in one sitting at the machine you can run up all the little seams. The hemmer can all be turned and run while the hemmer is on and eliminates changing the foot of the machine more than once. Instead of collars, turn the raw edge of the neck outward and put finishing braid over it. This gives a dainty finish and is not half the work a collar is. The buttonholes and buttons can be seen to under a tree in the yard with your children. This method of making plain clothes for little ones saves much time and energy and if tried out will be adhered to.

It is not our capacity for earning that counts. We must know how to expend; how to save, as well. Any thoughtless expenditure of time, energy or money is to be decried. The women who stand at the head of homes, holding the position of vice-president, must, to be successful, plan before she spends. Do you?

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich. — "I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would sweep the floor I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong." — Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Not Well Enough to Work. In these words is hidden the tragedy of many a woman, housekeeper or wage earner who supports herself and is often helping to support a family, on meagre wages. Whether in house, office, factory, shop, store or kitchen, woman should remember that there is one tried and true remedy for the ills to which all women are prone, and that is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It promotes that vigor which makes work easy. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Lapse of Enoch Wentworth

By ISABEL GORDON CURTIS

"It has never seemed to me there was anything particularly nice in the whole situation," Andrew's tones were on a calm level.

"We'll leave that out of the question altogether," growled Wentworth. "I should never have intruded upon you but for this reason. You can see the exigencies of the case. You've got to retouch the play."

"I will not lay a pen to the play," Enoch turned as if the conversation were at an end and began to pencil careworn wrinkles on his cheeks.

Enoch tipped his chair back against the wall, put his feet on the rungs, and began to think. Nobody knew so well as he that one faced a barricade with Merry in a doggedly obstinate mood.

Inwardly he was at white heat; the blind, groping hope for reconciliation was at an end; still he knew if he ever needed diplomacy it was now. If he were to precipitate a storm, Merry was capable of flinging over his engagement at the last moment.

"Let me explain," began Wentworth laboriously. A tap at the door interrupted him. It was opened and Oswald stepped in. He seated himself on the edge of a trunk.

"Have you mentioned to Mr. Merry the suggestion I made about the second act?" he asked, turning to Wentworth.

"We were discussing it when you came in."

"What do you think of it, Merry?" "I really have not had time to give it a thought," Andrew looked uninterested. "Besides, you know I do not come into that act, and I have scarcely seen it rehearsed." He picked up a towel and began to wipe the make-up off his face.

"It is simply this. Mrs. Esterbrook is an utterly heartless woman. Dead to conscience as she is at the beginning, she comes out of her life's tragedy calloused beyond all redemption. It strikes a false note to have her repent for even a second. She does not know what mother-love or love of any sort means. With her last exit she ought to leave an audience hating and despising her. Now one feels a sudden touch of sympathy. She must be irredeemably bad. Then, too, it is not only true to the woman's character, but 'Cordelia' shines whiter against it."

Merry nodded. "You're right, I fancy. Wentworth has only to change a few lines to throw the whole thing plumb. You can do it in half an hour, old chap."

When Oswald turned to Wentworth he caught a look on the man's face that puzzled him, a flash of impotent rage, hate, and apprehension. Enoch realized he had revealed his soul for a moment. He picked up his hat and spoke brusquely. "You two finish talking it over. I have a thousand things to tend to."

"Is Wentworth—is he touchy? Did he feel that I was criticizing his play?" asked Oswald anxiously when the door closed with a hasty rap.

"I don't think it's that," Merry spoke slowly, then he dashed to another subject. "I want to consult you about changing one of the people in the cast, little Katie Durham."

"Oh, the child in the first act?" "She's a bright enough youngster. She tells me she once got a hundred dollars a week in vaudeville as a toe dancer," Merry laughed. "A toe dancer scarcely fills the bill for the small 'Cordelia.'"

"She struck me in rehearsal this morning as lacking in something."

"She is lacking in everything. She's a stilted, grown-up, little brat; there's nothing childlike about her. When she clings to my neck shrieking, 'Father, in that ear-splitting baby pipe of hers, she jars every nerve in my body.'"

"Let her go. Only it is a problem where to find a sweet, natural stage child."

"I can lay my hands on one immediately," said Merry quietly. "It's a youngster who has never been behind the footlights in her life."

"Could you do anything with her in ten days?" "I should like to try. She's a gentle, refined, sweet-voiced little girl; besides, she has dramatic blood in her—that always tells. Do you remember George Volk?"

"George Volk? Why, of course," cried Oswald after a moment's hesitation. "What ever became of the man? Did he die?"

"Nobody knows," Merry's voice had a bitter tone in it. "Better for some people if he had died. This little Julie I was talking about is his child."

"Where is Volk?" "I can't tell you. If he's alive he must be far down by this time. He was a wretched sot when I saw him last."

"By Jove! what an impetuous stage lover he did make! I saw him in a big production the first time I came to America, then in London. He was the handsomest man that ever stepped on the stage."

"A handsome piece of beef! Ten years ago he married one of the sweetest, most loyal women I ever knew. She was on the stage, but she never won much notice. Her work was so quiet and delicate that she appealed to the few. She was in a company with me for two seasons. How Volk made her suffer! The beast!"

"Is she alive?" "Yes, I hadn't heard of the Volks for years. I was going home last night when a woman touched me on the arm. She was lame and looked ill. A little girl clung to her. I did not know her. 'I'm Alice Volk,' she said. I put them in a cab and took them up to Harlem, to the best hotel woman in the world."

"Are they in want?" asked Oswald. "They were starving, in rags and shoeless. The child pulled at my heart strings. She isn't quite seven and small for her age, but the way she cares for the poor, crippled little mother—"

Andrew laid a gray wig upon his knee and began to brush it vigorously. "I don't want to throw this Durham youngster out of a job, though, simply because I can't endure her. She's common as dirt, but she can't help it. Have you seen the mother?"

"Yes," said Oswald gravely. "What teases me is how we could delude an audience into believing that this sharp-nosed, uncanny-looking, shrill-tongued little ape could develop into Miss Wentworth's 'Cordelia.' They're different breeds entirely."

"You're right," Oswald's voice was emphatic. "I don't know why I did not see it. Perhaps because the child has little to do except to follow her father about."

"It's that following the father about which I mean to make the strongest point in the first act."

"Engage the child immediately."

"I'll have to do diplomatic work to get her."

"How?" "Alice Volk would rather starve than let her child go on the stage. She has been hoping we might find a small part for herself which she could play—"

"Crippled."

"Poor soul."

"I hinted that we might give the little Julie a chance. She snatched the child away as if she thought I meant to kidnap her. When a woman has seen the seamy side of life as she has—you understand."

Oswald nodded gravely. "We must find a way to get around her."

Merry sat writing a letter in the manager's office the next afternoon when Oswald entered, accompanied by Dorcas.

"I want you to tell Miss Wentworth about the little Volk girl," said the Englishman. "I have enlisted her sympathy. If the mother felt that some woman here would be interested in the child she might change her mind."

"I'll do anything I can," said Dorcas heartily. "I am glad you are making a change. It will improve the first act wonderfully to have the child sweet and real. Then," the girl laughed in a half-embarrassed way, "did you ever look at a picture of yourself when you were at the tadpole age and wonder if it could have possibly been you? That has been my frame of mind since I laid eyes on the little 'Cordelia.'"

"I don't blame you," Oswald smiled. "I can't imagine why we made such a blunder. Merry puts it just the way you do."

"Thank you, Mr. Merry," Dorcas turned to the actor with a grateful smile. "I am ready to go with you any time to see Mrs. Volk."

Dorcas had a new insight in Merry's character when she found how his friends held him in esteem. There was not a touch in Mrs. Billerwell's greeting, of hero worship or deference to the man who had won fame. It was merely a droll blend of loving devotion and motherly tyranny.

Merry jumped to his feet when Mrs. Volk entered, with Julie clinging shyly to her gown. Dorcas felt instantly a throb of sympathy and warm friendship. Merry had told her something of the pitiful story on the way uptown.

"You said once, Miss Dorcas," he reminded her, "that you were never so happy as when you had some one to mother. Alice Volk needs mothering. I doubt if she has a friend in the world except Mother Billerwell and myself. Mrs. Billerwell is pure gold, but Alice needs a woman like you."

Half an hour later they waited on the platform of an L station for a downtown train. They had scarcely spoken since leaving the Harlem house. Merry realized how deeply the girl's heart had been stirred. They entered the train and took a seat together in silence. She sat gazing at the city below. Then she turned suddenly.

"Little Julie is to begin rehearsals tomorrow morning," she said. "The mother made only one condition: they are to be known under another name. She is in terror lest her husband finds them."

"That's all right, but do you think the child can play the small 'Cordelia'?" asked Merry anxiously.

"You can do anything you wish with that child. She has a soul and sweetness, and she understands. There is something in her—we call it magnetism in older people—which will reach across the footlights and grip every man and woman in the audience. The child will help me wonderfully. Now I won't have to create a new 'Cordelia' when I come on the stage. My 'Cordelia' is simply the little girl grown older and wiser, with more love for her father and a larger knowledge of life."

"You understand perfectly."

"You and I ought to understand 'Cordelia' if any one could."

Dorcas sat in silence while they rushed over the lighted city with its insistent glimpses of sordid life. Merry saw her chin tremble once and her eyes grew misty; then she spoke suddenly: "She must have lived through awful experiences."

"Alice Volk has seen the very depths. She suffered more than misery and neglect; there was actual brutality. I knew her before Volk came into her life. She played with the first New York company I was in. She was the gayest little creature they ever got imaging—a whimsical, laughing, care-free, happy child."

"Gay!" Dorcas spoke incredulously. "The gaiety has gone."

"It has been wrong out of her."

"I never had a real woman friend except the sisters at the convent," said Dorcas. "I think Alice Volk and I will be friends. We can help each other."

"Each other? I had not thought of it in that way. Your friendship will mean a great deal to her. It is like reaching out a hand to some one who is drowning."

"Alice Volk is different from any one I ever met. When little Julie ran out to speak to you, I followed her. The mother laid her hand on my arm, drew me back into the room, then she closed the door and kissed me. She did not say a word. Any other woman would have kissed me while I was saying 'Good-by,' before you and Mrs. Billerwell. She does unexpected things that cannot help drawing one to her."

"Four souls!" said Merry.

The conductor entered, shutting the door behind him with a crash. "Twenty-third street!" he called.

"Let us get off and have dinner somewhere," suggested the actor. "I want to talk to you—for hours."

Dinner Stories

"How is it," inquired a young bride of an older married friend, "that you always manage to have such delicious meat?"

"It's very simple," said the older woman. "I first select a good, honest butcher, and then I stand by him."

"You mean that you give him all your trade?"

"No, I mean that I stand by him while he is cutting the meat."

Father was sitting in the den, taking a peaceful smoke, when there came from the parlor a noise that sounded like a cross between the sigh of a pine tree and the wail of a locomotive. With something akin to strong language he rose and went downstairs. In the hall he met his daughter.

"Say, Bessie," queried the old man, "what is the agitation in the parlor?"

"Charles," was the response Bessie. "He is singing 'I Wonder He Will Miss Me.'"

"Yes," answered dad, regretfully. "I can't see to shoot straight at him and I am too rheumatic to kick."

To Shell Pecans. The meats of pecan nuts may be removed if they are first placed in a pan and boiling water poured over them, says the Western Christian Advocate. Allow them to remain in water for 20 or 30 minutes. When nuts are cracked the meats come without trouble and are usually whole.

Strange Tree. In Guinea there is a tree which yields a peculiar kind of a fruit, huge fruit resembling in size a cannon ball and which makes a tremendous noise when it pops.

"AND YOU SAY IT'S CAUSED BY A NERVOUS DECLINE! WHAT WILL YOU DO FOR THAT?"

"I'll cure you of that pimple, sir, but that pain in your finger-tip is outside my province. You see, Dr. Trimp the finger-tip specialist! Twenty-five dollars!"

"I'll take care of your throat trouble, sir, but I can't do anything for that pimple on your forehead. I'd advise you to see Dr. Sprenger the skin specialist! Twenty dollars please!"

"I'll fix up your nervous system, sir, but that affection of the throat is not in my line. You see Dr. Klotz the throat specialist! Fifteen dollars please!"

"I'm a stomach specialist, sir, and I don't treat the nerves! You go and see Dr. Blix the nerve specialist! Ten dollars please!"

"I was going to consult Dr. Bilton, but I see he's a general practitioner. What I need is a specialist! I'll go and consult a stomach specialist!"
